6	Focusing on Islam, this book is illustrating how the practices in Islam, in this case the halal and haram standards in consumption behavior of Muslims, can be used by adapting global retailers to strengthen their operations worldwide. Being global retailers, these multinational corporations have the ability to expand the sales of halal products produced in Malaysia to other countries through their subsidiary networks. If global retailers are quick to realize that halal products and concepts can be fully exploited to their advantage as what the banking industry had done with Islamic finance concepts, then they should be able to experience competitive advantage which is crucial in this day and age of the business world. However, MNCs themselves need to firstly realize and accept that adapting to host country's culture can be a way of increasing their knowledge regarding various methods of operations.

This transformation is not intended to ignore the current existing law that has been agreed such as al-Quran, al-Sunnah, al-Ijma' and Qiyyas but also take into account disagreed ones such as 'Uruf, Maslahah, Istishab and alternative sources; Istihalah, Istihlak and Istibra'. This book discusses on istihalah which consists of its concepts, scholars' views, Islamic laws, the structures and divisions of Istihalah.
